WILL CAMP HERE JULY 7 TO AUG. 29

War Department Authorizes Camp of Instruction at Gettysburg for Almost Two Months. College Students as Soldiers.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington two military camps are to be established this summer by the War Department exclusively for summer training of college students, one at Gettysburg, lasting from July 7 to August 29, and the other at the Presidio of Monterey, California, from July 1 to August 29. Students over 17 years of age, recommended by officers detailed as military instructors in colleges, will be taken immediately into the camps, where they will be given practical military instruction, including practice marches.

The students will be required to pay their own transportation and subsistence charges as well as to purchase their uniforms, Congress having made no provision for the camps. The War Department, however, will supply the military instructors and a sufficient number of officers for the provisional regiments.

The Army and Navy Journal in telling of the plans for these two camps says:

"It is planned to give the students all the practical instruction possible in the short time that they are stationed at the camp. Two weeks will be utilized in a practice march at the Gettysburg camp, the regiment going to Mount Gretna where it will be disbanded. The officers will be directed to give the student soldiers real work, such as will lay the foundation for further instruction."

"For the regiment the War Department will furnish a regimental commander, one adjutant, three battalion commanders, three battalion staff officers, twelve company commanders and twenty four enlisted men."

"The students will be required to pay their own transportation to and from the camps, there being no authority to furnish them any transportation. They will also be required to purchase a uniform at the cost of $7.66 and to pay for their subsistence in camp at the rate of $1.75 per week. Regular Army rations will be served to them and they will have a real taste of Army life."

At the offices of the National Park Commission this morning it was stated that the arrangements for the above camp are to be made as outlined and orders have been issued from the War Department to that effect. It was also stated that the site for the camp had not yet been determined upon.

Officers in charge of the work in connection with the veterans' camp spoke to-day of knowing of the arrangements for the student-soldiers' camp but said that they had not yet received any information as to whether or not the equipment of the big veterans' camp would be used in the camp of instruction to be held here July 7-August 29. It is said, however, that such an arrangement was possible and it was generally considered probable that the same site may be desired in view of all the equipment, including water and lighting facilities, being in place.

The news comes to Gettysburg as a pleasant surprise as nothing whatever was known here of any such camp being held. From the arrangements announced it is evident that about one thousand college students are expected to take advantage of the idea and it is evidently the intention that they shall come from all the principal institutions in the east. There will be no camps in the central and southern divisions of the country as most of the troops of those divisions are now at Galveston, Texas.

The establishment of such a camp at Gettysburg during practically the whole months of July and August will give the town one of the best attractions it has had in a number of years. It is the first year that such a camp has been held in the United States and, if successful, will likely be a regular summer feature.

WON FIRST PRIZE

Guernsey Girl Wins First Prize at West Chester.

At an oratorical contest held at West Chester State Normal School on last Saturday in which there were eight contestants, first prize was awarded to Miss Esther Vroman Peters of Guernsey, of the class of 1913. Subject, "The Realm of Fancy." The orations were written by the orators.

WILL OPEN THE TOWN CHURCHES

Gettysburg Ministerial Association Decides to Open Churches for Accommodation of Visitors. Scale of Prices Arranged.

That all the churches of town will be opened to accommodate those in July who are unable to get rooms in the hotels and homes of Gettysburg was determined upon Monday by the members of the Ministerial Association at their monthly meeting.

In order that there may be a uniform price, for such accommodations as the churches may be able to give, the following scale of prices was determined upon: for a pillow 25 cents; for a pillow and cushioned pew, 35 cents; for a pillow, blanket and pew, 50 cents. At the time of the Pennsylvania monument dedication several of the churches were opened to accommodate the crowds but no provision had been made for their comfort and the persons who took advantage of the shelter had to do the best they could to make themselves comfortable. It is believed this year will see many in the churches with a reasonable chance of comfort.

The members of the Ministerial Association further determined to have services in all the churches of town on both the Sunday preceding and the Sunday following the anniversary celebration. It has been the custom in the past to have service in only one church in town Sunday evenings in July and August but, for these first two Sundays this year, all the churches will be open as it is believed both days will see hundreds of visitors in Gettysburg.

An effort will be made to get Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan to conduct a sunrise religious service on one of the historic hills surrounding Gettysburg during the week of the celebration and the matter was placed in the hands of a committee of the association.

MRS. JACOB LAWRENCE

Mrs. Lawrence Died at Daughter's Home in Irishtown.

Mrs. Belinda Lawrence, widow of the late Jacob Lawrence, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lewis G. Lawrence, in Irishtown, Sunday, April 20th, at 4:30 p. m., after a lingering illness of over three years, from rheumatism. She was aged 82 years, 1 month and 16 days.

Mrs. Lawrence was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Timmons, of near New Oxford. Since the death of her husband, which occurred about nine years ago, she made her home with her children.

She leaves five children, as follows: Mrs. Lewis Lawrence, of Irishtown; Mrs. Charles Bunty and J. C. Lawrence, of McSherrystown; Mrs. Harry Fink, of Lancaster, and Charles W. Lawrence, of Gettysburg. One sister, Mrs. Amelia Noel, of Mount Rock, also survives. There are 26 grandchildren and 9 great grandchildren.

Funeral Wednesday, April 23, from Conewago Chapel, high mass of requiem at 9 a. m., Rev. Germanus Kohl officiating. Interment in the Chapel cemetery.

DECISIONS AFFIRMED

Two Adams County Court Decisions Affirmed by Higher Courts.

Opinions handed down on Monday affirmed two Adams County Court decisions.

The Supreme Court affirmed the opinion of Judge Sadler in the case of Miller vs. the Hanover Water Company in which judgment for $1900 was allowed Levi Miller.

The Superior Court affirmed the decision of Judge Swope in the case of Charles M. Fisel vs. J. E. Kissinger on which a judgment of $106 was allowed the plaintiff.

WAR COLLEGE VISIT

Army War College will Visit Gettysburg in June.

A detail from the Army War College at Washington will visit Gettysburg in June, probably about the 13th. The details of their trip here have not yet been arranged. The tour has been made several times in the past, one year the officers going into camp while in other years they stayed at the local hotels while studying the battlefield. Whether or not they will march here is also not yet announced.

MORE TROUBLE AT NEW BUILDING

Stone Carvers Quit when Pay is not Forthcoming. Execution Issued on Carload of Marble. Work being Seriously Delayed.

As the result of further financial difficulties in connection with the construction of the federal building, the carvers who have been busy for several weeks on that structure have now been idle for three days and the time of their resuming operations is indefinite.

It is said that these expert workmen have not been paid promptly and that as a result they have refused to work until they have received compensation for their labor which is reported to be at the rate of $6 per day. It is stated that the contractor for the building, Ambrose B. Stannard, has not met his obligations with the firm having this sub-contract.

On Monday execution was issued on the carload of marble on which a foreign attachment was granted some days ago and this will be sold to meet local obligations.

The complications which have arisen on account of these financial difficulties is seriously retarding work at the structure and it will be almost necessary, it is said, for the bonding company to take matters in charge, in order to complete the structure in anything like reasonable time.

IRVIN—HALL

St. Ignatius' Church, Buchanan Valley, Scene of Wedding

A beautiful wedding was solemnized in St. Ignatius' church, Buchanan Valley, Wednesday morning, April 16th when Miss Emma, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, became the bride of Wm. F. Irvin. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Howard.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother John F. Hall, the groomsmen, Miss Virginia Irvin, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white embroidered voile trimmed with lace and Irish crochet rosebuds and a white picture hat. She carried a shower bouquet of white carnations.

The bridesmaid also wore a beautiful gown of white embroidered voile trimmed with lace and Irish crochet rosebuds, and carried pink carnations. The color scheme was pink and white. Mrs. Irvin is a charming young lady and is popular in a large circle of friends. Mr. Irvin is a prosperous young man and also has a host of friends.

Following the ceremony dinner was served to the immediate families at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Hall. An unusual number of handsome presents were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin will move into their newly furnished home on one of his father's farms in Buchanan Valley in the near future.

MOUNTAIN FIRES

Seventy-Five Acres State Land Are Burned Over.

Three fires on the mountains occurred Sunday afternoon.

The largest burned over about 75 acres of timber on the old Pass place, back of Vineyard hollow. The land belongs to the state. This fire occurred between two and three o'clock. The second was on the land owned by C. O. Bonner, Fairview. The tract was purchased by Mr. Bonner from D. C. Shank and consisted of 26 acres of good timber. The fire was discovered between five and six o'clock. In each case the fires were extinguished by Forest Ranger Harry Thomas, students from the State forest academy and men of the vicinity, by back firing. The third fire occurred near Hunter's Run.

FINE CAR

New Auto Line will be Equipped with Fine Car.

The body for the automobile bus to run between Caledonia and Gettysburg is now building in the C. V. R. R. car shops at Chambersburg. It is on the general plan of a trolley car and will seat fifteen or more passengers. Finished in hard wood throughout, the workmanship is of the highest kind.

It will be mounted on a White truck chassis of high horse power that will make the run in about the same time that a trolley car would require. Entrance to the car will be at the rear end, and the interior will look much like a regular Brill car.

PLACING EIGHT BRONZE STATUES

Large Bronze Statues of Lincoln Governor Curtin and Six Pennsylvania Generals now here and to be Put in Place.

Eight large bronze statues are this week being placed about the massive Pennsylvania memorial on Hancock avenue, under the direction of General H. S. Huidekoper, chairman of the Pennsylvania Gettysburg Monument Commission and W. B. Van Amringe, of the Van Amringe Granite Company, of Boston.

On either side of the main entrance to the memorial will be the statues of Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Curtin, the War Governor, while between the other columns will be those of Generals D. McM. Gregg, Alfred Pleasanton, George G. Meade, John Fulton Reynolds, Winfield Scott Hancock and David H. Birney. All are fine pieces of the sculptor's art and were cast by the Gorham Silver Company, of Providence, R. I.

The statues are eight feet in height and complete the memorial. An appropriation of $40,000 was made for these statues, the corrections on the tablets about the monument and the placing of the walk together with other expenses. Had the commission purchased the eight bronze figures in the open market, it is stated they would probably have cost twice as much.

General Huidekoper is much interested in the bill now being urged at Harrisburg for the erection of five other similar statues on the Gettysburg battlefield. An appropriation of $55,000 is asked for these which are also to be eight feet in height and placed on eight foot pedestals. They are of General Crawford to be placed near the Wheat Field; General Geary, on Culp's Hill; General Humphries, on the Emmitsburg Road; General Gibbon, near the Angle; and General Hays at the Angle. It is generally believed that the appropriation will be granted without delay.

In addition to providing for the erection of these five bronze memorials the sum will also cover the cost of issuing a book in which will be given the photographs of all the statues and every tablet on the large Pennsylvania memorial, a page being set for each tablet and the publication providing a permanent memorial for every Pennsylvanian who fought at Gettysburg.

MRS. LOUIS H. CLEMENT

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Buehler of this Place.

Mrs. Louis H. Clement, of Salisbury, North Carolina, died suddenly on Sunday at her home from pneumonia.

Her maiden name was Miss Mary Buehler and she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Buehler, of Gettysburg, and had a wide circle of friends here. She was a sister of Mrs. Edwin Heyl Delk, who died some years ago in Hagerstown, and of Mrs. Louis D. Wine now living in Washington.

She was married November 27, 1878 to Louis H. Clement, Esq., who survives together with four sons, Hayden Clement, former assistant attorney general of North Carolina; Dr. Edward Clement, of Philadelphia; and Donald and Louis Clement, at home. Funeral to-day in Salisbury.

TO PASS ANTI-JAPANESE BILL

Leaders Declare Land Law Will Exempt Other Aliens.

JOHNSON TO SIGN ACT

California Legislators Say Sentiment Favoring Measure Is Non-Partisan. Tokio Is Calmer.

Sacramento, Cal., April 22.—It was said by administration leaders in the legislature that a definite agreement to enact an alien land law, directed solely against the Japanese, and exempting all foreigners "eligible to citizen ship in the United States," had been reached and would be carried out this week.

It is understood that this course has the approval of Governor Johnson and that he will sign the bill immediately upon its passage.

Whether such a law would be constitutional will remain in doubt until it is tested in the federal courts, but it is the settled policy of the majority party in the legislature to regard the state as having full rights until determined otherwise by judicial decision.

It is said the danger of irreparable loss to the state, through frightening away European capital, coupled with the fact that no difference what the form of the measure, the Japanese would know it really was aimed at them, caused the legislative committee to decide on a bill frankly intended to affect only Asiatics.

The announcement from Tokio that Japan already had withdrawn her support from the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco is said to have had some influence.

Secretary of State Bryan's telegram of Saturday containing advice directly contrary to the present plan of action, is taken only as an expression of opinion and not as interfering in any way with the state's right to act. The sentiment favoring an alien land law is non-partisan, and it is doubtful whether more than one Democrat in the senate will heed the Bryan message when the measure comes to a vote.

Leaders of the Progressive Republican majority declare they are not restricted politically or otherwise by the views of the Democratic administration.

Senator Boynton, president pro tem, and floor leader of the senate, said: "I believe the people of California desire an alien land law that will have the effect of preventing their agricultural and residential lands from passing into the hands of the Japanese and Chinese and such a law should be passed."

"It must not be so sweeping in character, however, as to exclude all aliens. California should welcome the sturdy farmers of Europe and Canada; also the capital investments of these people, and I believe it would be a mistake to bar such people and such capital simply to save the pride of the Japanese and Chinese."

"No good purpose can be served in this case by passing a general law. It should state its object, as desired by the people of California, and stop there."

CALMER FEELING IN JAPAN

War Talk Is Checked, But Outcome in California Is Anxiously Awaited.

Tokio, Japan, April 22.—The wounded pride of Japan, which last week was vented in angry militant talk by irresponsible people, has become somewhat mollified.

The entire nation awakes with anxiety for outcome of the deliberations on the alien land holding bill in California.

The government and commercial forces of Japan are using their utmost exertions to restrain agitators. They point out that the real influences in Japan rely confidently upon the highest thought and the highest influences in the United States. At the same time they assert that there is no single responsible person in either country who even dreams of war.

It is becoming increasingly evident that the agitation in Japan is largely inspired by a small political group seeking to embarrass the government and putting forward the American land question to rouse national feeling and hide their real purpose.

Wants No Discrimination.

Washington, April 22.—President Wilson told callers that his whole thought in the California land bill problem was that there should be no discrimination against the Japanese. Laws embodying features of the so-called "senate bill" have been in force in various states and have not been subjected by.

Urges One-Cent Postage.

Washington, April 22.—Senator Penrose renewed his effort to reduce the first class postage rate to one cent an ounce or fraction thereof. In the last congress he offered a bill to provide for one-cent postage, but no action was taken upon the measure.

30-YEAR-OLD MISS WAS NEVER KISSED

Says She Is Not a Man Hater, But Habit Is Unclean.

Pottsville, Pa., April 22.—This town is agog over the presence of a young lady of thirty years who has never been kissed.

Not only not kissed by a man, but not by a woman, either, and the townspeople who have had the pleasure of her society were simply astounded when Miss Eleanor Stager, of Cincinnati, who is visiting some friends in this city, refused to be a party to the kissing habit.

At a recent social function at the home of her relatives Miss Stager refused point blank to be kissed. She conferred to her age and then declared that coquetry was a habit and a practice which she despised so much that she had never had the temerity to adopt it.

Miss Stager said that she was opposed to women kissing each other, because they never meant affection for the other when they kissed. They are always hypocritical, and when a woman kisses, Miss Stager says, it is with the thought "You wretch, I'll get even with you for this!" on their minds.

She added that she is not a man hater, but that the habit was unclean, against her scruple, and that she would never kiss any one while she was alive. After she was dead, she said, she didn't care.

SHOT AT CHRISTENING

Hazleton Police Suspect Black Hand Plot.

Hazleton, Pa., April 21.—Shot in the breast with a revolver after a christening at the home of a friend, James Carosse, of this city, died at the State hospital. He is survived by his wife and five children.

James Hiose, his alleged assailant, also a guest at the christening, is at large. It is believed by the police that Carosse was the victim of a Black Hand plot in the attempted extortion of $500.

SENATE YIELDS ON TARIFF HEARINGS

Arguments May Be Filed With the Committee.

HAVE FEAR OF DELAY

Leaders Plan to Rush Revision Measure Through the House by Limiting the Debate.

Washington, April 21.—Democratic forces in charge of tariff revision in the senate slightly yielded to the demands for hearings upon tariff schedules.

In addition to the permission given all interested persons to file further statements with the finance committee, Senator Simmons conceded to a group of western senators the right to appear and give their arguments against the free wool and free sugar provisions that have been agreed to by the Democrats of the house.

A full meeting of the senate finance committee is to be held. Republican senators will then renew the demand that general open hearings be given. The attitude of the majority of the Democratic members of the committee is against this, however. They say that such a course would delay tariff revision, and that no arguments would be brought forth that have not already been adduced in the hearings before the house committee, or in the briefs filed with the senate committee.

The Underwood tariff bill, as finally approved and revised by the caucus of house Democrats, was reported favorably in the house by the ways and means committee. Republican members filed a dissenting report, criticizing its rates and the method of revision followed by the Democrats.

The bill will be expedited through the house by limitation of debate. The Republicans are figuring on several amendments to be proposed in addition to the proposed substitutes for the Underwood wool and cotton schedules.

The senate Democratic leaders have given up hope of having the bill brought into the senate in the form of separate schedules. It has been determined that the measure will be considered as a whole bill in the senate, as it will be in the house.

The hearing to be granted to the senators from Rocky mountain and Pacific coast states, upon the wool and sugar issues, is expected to develop the full strength of the opposition to the bill and to give the finance committee definite information as to whether or not it will be necessary to restore any of the duty on either of these schedules.

According to information the Louisiana, Kansas and Nebraska anti-free sugar forces had not been included in the invitation given for the finance committee hearing.

President Wilson told callers that he believed the low rates of the tariff bill justified, even though not permitting of many further cuts for reciprocity agreements. The president told his visitors he thought the primary consideration was the advantage of the consumer and not necessarily the retention of tactical advantage for future negotiation of reciprocity agreements.

TO WED A COUNT

Ex-Governor Wargeld's Daughter to Marry Polish Nobleman.

Baltimore, Md., April 22.—Count Vladimir Ledochowski, of Cracow, Poland, has arrived here to visit his fiancée, Miss Louise Warfield, daughter of the former governor of Maryland.

Miss Warfield is one of Baltimore's most beautiful debutantes. While on a trip around the world last year the count met Miss Warfield at Honolulu and they became engaged.

Governor Warfield at first objected, but he must have relented, for he went to New York with his two daughters—Mrs. W. Harris and Miss Louise—and met the prospective son-in-law.

The first interview is declared to have had its difficulties, as the English of the count is limited, while Governor Warfield's knowledge of Russian, French or Polish is even less.

CHILDISH CURIOSITY FATAL

Boy Crawls Into Iron Roller and Is Nearly Decapitated.

Ottawa, Can., April 22.—Childish curiosity to know what was inside of a heavy iron roller proved fatal to the four-year-old son of Thomas Burnstead, a farmer near Medford.

The boy crawled part way into the roller at a moment when his father's attention was taken up with oiling a bearing, and the latter then started up his horses, not knowing the child's predicament.

A neighbor who was passing took in the situation at a glance and instantly shouted to Burnstead to halt. The roller, however, had already begun to revolve and the child's head was nearly severed from his shoulders, resulting in instant death.

TO OPERATE ON GOV. MANN

Virginia's Chief Executive Taken to Hospital With Appendicitis.

Richmond, Va., April 22.—Governor Mann's attack of appendicitis, which it was thought would yield to treatment without an operation, came to such a stage that his physicians decided to operate at once.

The governor was borne upon a stretcher by four orderlies from the state mansion to the Memorial hospital a block away.

Wilson to Speak in New Jersey.

Washington, April 22.—President Wilson will go to New Jersey on May 1 to participate in the fight for the enactment of a jury reform law. He will speak at Paterson on that date and at Jersey City on May 2. Both speeches will be made at night and the trip will be made under the auspices of the Democratic state committee.

CHAPTER IV. The Virginians.

GENERAL JOE JOHNSTON—the ranking Confederate officer, but who had intrusted the immediate command to Beauregard on account of the latter's familiarity with the country—was able to keep from his headquarters something like a general outlook over the field and received intelligence just as a final attack was preparing that a Federal army had come up and was advancing upon his rear. This should have been the Union reserves from Centerville, but it was not. It was General Kirby Smith of the Army of the Shenandoah arriving with 1,700 fresh infantry. The whole southern line now advanced to the charge, and the combined attack upon the Federal flank and front was decisive enough to turn the tide of battle from uncertainty to sudden panic. The lines of blue wavered and broke, fell back from the plateau, across the Warrenton pike and on toward the Bull Run fords. The repulse became a rout, the rout grew into an appalling avalanche of defeat. The Federal advance on the southern side of Bull Run had seen a regiment moving toward them, but were told it was a New York regiment which had been expected for support, and the artillerymen withheld their fire. Suddenly there came a fearful explosion of masonry, which in an instant changed the scene into one of hideous carnage. Death-stricken men with dripping wounds were clinging to caissons, which frantic horses dragged pell-mell through the infantry ranks and over the prostrate bodies of the fallen. A caisson blew up and three horses galloped off with the burning wreck, dragging a fourth horse, which was dead. Cannoneers lay limp across their guns, with rammers and sponges and lanyards still in their hands. Whole batteries were annihilated in a moment, and organization command was wiped out. Those who could run, walk, limp, or even crawl, waited no longer, but dropped everything and got away from there.

On his hill at Manassas, after the final victorious charge, General Jackson had come nearer to the actual truth of possibility than he or any other Confederate then knew when he cried out exultantly:

"Give me 10,000 men and I will be in Washington tonight!"

The dawn of Monday came, but the sun did not shine. In the hot, sultry, drizzling morning the defeated troops poured into Washington over the Long bridge.

Some good citizens—but they were not in the majority—put out steaming wash kettles filled with coffee or soup for the forlorn boys. Among these good Samaritans was Jenny Buckthorn, surrounded by a staff of colored servants. Her father, severely wounded and captured by the enemy, had been recognized by his former comrade, General Beauregard, and as a personal courtesy had been exchanged for a wounded Confederate officer and allowed to proceed to Washington in an ambulance, attended by Colonel Harvill.

"Where is Heartseuse?" was the first question Jenny asked her father after having ascertained that that stern parent was not dead.

"Don't ask me," muttered the old warrior. "This is no time for pictures and dancing parties."

One especially miserable looking object drifted along about noon and stood as if dazed at the sight of food and drink and commiseration. His uniform might have been blue or it might have been gray—mad and smudge were the prevailing hues. His shoes were heavy brogans tied with twine, and his naked and sore ankles showed that he was without socks. An old slouch hat was pulled over his face, and a tobacco bag hung from a button of his jacket, the collar of which was turned up to the chin, evidently to conceal the condition of the shirt or the lack of one. "You poor fellow!" said Jenny. "Tell me, were you in the cavalry?"

"Yes, Miss Buckthorn. Is it possible you do not recognize me? I must apologize for my appearance, but—" "Great heavens! Is it yourself, Heartseuse?" exclaimed the girl, with a little shriek. "Why, you look like a bum!"

Whole Batteries Were Annihilated.

"Possibly this may serve to identify me," and he drew from the mysterious inner recesses a stained pocket, which proved to be a large silk handkerchief enveloping a dainty lace one.

Heartseuse received his captain's commission at the dinner table that same evening. After all, as the old general said, he was a regular and had fought before he ran, and that was a contrast to many of the pestiferous ready-made shoulder straps who had betrayed the brave volunteers and lost the fight for them, and who were now standing about unabashed, bragging in the barracks.

Kerchival West, shortly after his arrival at St. Louis, was assigned to the army of southwestern Missouri, where in a short time he saw hard service in almost every line except that of actual fighting. A large addition had been made to the regular army and to fill vacancies in the new regiments rapid promotions among the officers already in service had occurred. In a few months' time West rose from second lieutenant to the rank of captain of infantry—an advancement which a year before could only have been gained as a reward of perhaps fifteen years of continuous service.

As weeks and months passed on it was possible to find a certain encouragement in the fact that the defeat of McDowell's army, while not utilized by the Confederates to its full military effect, nevertheless flattered them into a feeling of strength and security, resulting in comparative inactivity in the field for the better part of a year. At the north the effect produced was exactly the contrary. While the south was planning the organization of a new republic and even putting up the name of General Beauregard as a candidate for the presidential succession in such a way as to incurred for that officer the cordial distrust of Jefferson Davis forever afterward, the Federal government and the people of the northern and western states set to work with furious energy to counteract the reverses suffered in the beginning. Congress authorized the enlistment of half a million of men for three years, an increase of the navy and stupendous loans with which to strengthen the sinews of war.

Lieutenant General Scott, now past seventy years of age, hung up his laureled sword and yielded the command of the Federal armies to a younger and more active officer, General George B. McClellan.

With two Federal armies ready to move into Virginia—that of McClellan at Washington and that under General Banks opposite Leesburg—to say nothing of considerable bodies of troops harassing the northern counties about the headwaters of the Potomac, the Confederate prospects for the spring of 1862 were decidedly threatening. To protect this portion of the state and to guard the lower Shenandoah valley against General Banks, the Confederate government determined to send a force to Winchester. This force, organized under the official title of the "Army of the Monongahela," was placed under the command of "Stonewall" Jackson, now advanced to the rank of major general.

This was great news to the Ellinghams, not only for the naive reason that it seemed to them like throwing an impregnable guard around Belle Hot Springs and the whole valley, but also and especially because of Captain Robert Ellingham's part in the growing prestige of the "Stonewall" brigade.

The valley of Virginia comprised within that section of the Appalachian plateau bounded on the east by the Blue Ridge and on the west by a range of the Alleghenies called there the North mountains, stretches from the headwaters of the Shenandoah near Staunton on the south to the Potomac on the north, a distance of considerably more than a hundred miles. At the upper end this valley is more than forty miles wide, while at Strasburg, fifty miles south of the Potomac, the extreme width is scarcely twenty-five.

A broad macadamized road, the famous Valley pike, traverses the entire region from north to south, with lateral roads extending to the mountain boundaries on either side, those toward the Blue Ridge connecting through various gaps with the railroads of eastern Virginia.

This beautiful and fertile region called for protection for its own sake as well as for that of its patriotic population (of which the Ellinghams were a fair sample), its numerous black slaves and the rich supplies which its lush meadow lands and broad plantations furnished.

It was especially important from a southern military viewpoint that the valley should be held intact by a Confederate army. No portion of the region could be given up without serious detriment to operations north of Richmond.

"If this valley is lost Virginia is lost," was Jackson's watchword.

Early in January, 1862, Captain Ellingham wrote to his sister in Richmond: "We have only conjecture as to our destination. General Jackson keeps his secrets so well as to deceive not only the enemy, but ourselves."

Without losing any time Jackson now set out with fiercer energy than ever to surprise the Federal garrison under General Kelly at Romney. The weather was fearful, even for ordinary travel, to say nothing of forced military movements. Men and horses fell on the icy roads, their guns going off all along the line, the knees and muzzles of the animals lacerated, the men limping along, leaving trails of blood on the frozen snow. The march was comparable to Napoleon's passage of the Alps and not alone in its hardships, but likewise in its results, for before the 1st of February General Kelly had evacuated Romney, and for the moment there was no Federal force left in the entire lower valley.

With the opening of spring four Federal armies under Fremont, Banks, McDowell and McClellan respectively were ready to close in upon Richmond. Fremont and Banks in the north and west expected to unite their forces and drive Jackson up the valley, cutting the Confederate communications and then sweeping down upon Richmond from the mountains, while McClellan marched up the peninsula between the James and York rivers, and McDowell advanced from Fredericksburg.

Early in March "Stonewall" Jackson was back in Winchester with Banks and an augmented Federal force at his heels on the north, and Shields with another army reported at Strasburg to the southward.

Here Bob Ellingham first made the acquaintance of Colonel Ashby, commanding Jackson's cavalry—a wonderful cavalier from Fauquier county, mounted on a milk white blooded horse, the most dashing rider in the whole state of Virginia, and as a leader of partisans destined soon to rank among the foremost of his contemporaries. Ashby looked like a Moor and had the chivalrous soul of a Saladin.

They struck Shields near Woodstock some forty miles up the pike, and on March 23 attacked him, at Kernstown, and were repulsed. This was one of the few setbacks Jackson encountered in his campaign, and the furious impulse of his rebound that followed immediately after made it a costly victory for his opponent. A frenzy seized "Old Stonewall" and his men and made them invincible, irresistible. The limitless resources of the now thoroughly aroused Washington government were brought to bear in earnest upon this bold secessionist.

The whole valley was alive with marching and countermarching, advancing and retreating armies. Jackson's desperate game was to present a menacing front in several directions at once, while awaiting reinforcements sorely needed. General Banks came over from Manassas, bent upon his destruction. At the same time Ricketts on his way with 10,000 men to join Fremont, was instructed to report to him as he followed Jackson up the valley. Jackson stood at bay at Swift Run gap in the Blue Ridge mountains with the Shenandoah river in his front and his flanks protected by the foot hills. Evell, with a handy Confederate force, was not far away, but on the other side of the mountains in Jackson's rear, at Gordonsville.

In this tight place Jackson called upon General Lee at Richmond to reinforce him with 5,000 men. Lee could not spare any from the defense of Richmond, but suggested that a union might be effected with General Edward Johnson and his 3,500 troops at Staunton. Evell was expected to move eastward against McDowell's Federal army at Fredericksburg. Meanwhile Banks, with his large force, was watching General Edward Johnson at Harrisonburg. The Federal Generals Milroy and Schenck had moved up west of the mountains, in front of Johnson, awaiting the arrival of Fremont from the north.

It was now the end of April, and "Stonewall" Jackson started in to do the theoretically impossible. Evelling Banks and Harrisonburg he moved with incredible swiftness to Staunton, joined his force with Johnson's and defeated Milroy and Schenck at one fell blow. This great advantage had to be followed up, so Evell marched over into the valley from Gordonsville, compelling Banks to fall back to Strasburg. Having disposed of the two Federal commanders, Jackson, with Evell, now hotted it to Front Royal, where the north and south forks of the Shenandoah river unite, at the northern end of the Massanutten ridge.

OPPOSE SCHOOL HEAD'S RETURN TO OFFICE

Children Strike Against Quitted Superintendent.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21.—Hundreds of children marched out of schools in various districts of the city and paraded through the streets in protest against the return to office of Superintendent S. L. Heeter, who was acquitted last week of charges against him by Ethel Fisher, a nurse in his home.

After he had been greeted in church Sunday with congratulations, when he arrived in company with Mrs. Heeter, who testified for him, and had been the recipient of scores of messages of sympathy and bouquets of flowers, he decided to resume his office.

When the noon editions of the afternoon papers that are demanding his resignation or discharge came out with the news of his return to office, mothers flocked to the schools and commanded their children to remain out. The movement spread quickly through the city until schools on both sides of the river were affected.

The strike began in the McCandless school, in the Lawrenceville district; then spread to the McCleary and Morgantown schools, in the same section of the city, and thence across the Allegheny river to the First Ward school in Northside.

In both instances parades were formed and the children marched through the business streets, singing "Good Night, Heeter," and carrying crayoned signs saying "Kick Heeter Out."

MINERS AWARDED DAMAGES

Four Injured Men Will Divide $30,000.

Pottsville, Pa., April 21.—By the affirmation of a decision by Judge C. N. Brumm by the supreme court four miners of this county will divide $30,000 to be paid them by the Lehigh Valley Coal company.

William Simmons, who was awarded the highest verdict, will get $9,500. Simmons, with his three companions, was terribly burned when a keg of powder they were carrying was set off by a sagging electric wire at the Primrose colliery.

The case is the first heard in the courts brought about by the introduction of electricity in the mines.

Philadelphia Executive to Study Political Economy.

Philadelphia, April 22.—Rudolph Blankenburg, the reform mayor of this city, and the members of his cabinet have decided to go back to school to take a course in political economy, so that they may be more competent to administer the affairs of the city.

The mayor and at least two members of his cabinet have arranged to go to Madison, Wis., next month to attend a course of lectures at the University of Wisconsin. The course, which is short and theoretical, is designed to solve the problems that confront modern municipalities.

When the mayor and his directors return they expect to be able to ride lightly over some of the municipal quagmires which have all but engulfed them to date.

Frost Hits Maryland Berries.

Federalsburg, Md., April 22.—The thermometer dropped to freezing on Sunday night and grave fears are felt in Caro line for the strawberry crop. Several farmers say their crops are badly injured. The buds, which have heretofore shown great promise, are black.

FLOOD COST P. R. R. MILLIONS

Worked Night and Day to Repair
Damage in Middle West.

THE LOSS IS $5,000,000

Forty-eight Spans of Bridges and More Than Thirty Miles of Double Tracks Were Washed Away.

Philadelphia, April 21.—The Pennsylvania railroad has emerged victorious over the destructive forces of one of the worst floods ever known in this country—that which recently inundated the middle west.

Stations, tracks, bridges and rolling stock were in the grip of a whirling current of water a few weeks ago. All service was indefinitely suspended as a result of the far-reaching destruction. Today trains are again running on the lines west of Pittsburgh.

It has been estimated by an official of the Pennsylvania railroad that the minimum loss from the Ohio floods will reach $5,000,000. That loss is to the railroad company alone.

Since the day that the water began to recede an army of railroad men, trainmen, switchmen, telegraph operators and officials have been waging continual battle against the elements in their endeavors to move thousands of cars of freight to their destinations.

Congestion at Pittsburgh has been terrific since the flood. Eastern ships were necessarily had to send out their goods, and the many long freight trains that have been crawling into Pittsburgh for the west have been held until crippled transportation facilities could be remedied.

At last, after an unprecedented era of titanic labor, the company has succeeded in starting the great volume of freight further westward. This necessitated an enormous amount of work.

Fifty-eight spans of bridges, some of them great structures, were carried away along the lines west of Pittsburgh. Between Newcomerstown and Trinway, Ohio, more than thirty miles of double tracks were torn and twisted into useless masses of steel. Two bridges at Zanesville across the Muskingum river were swept away, and one at Dayton, used jointly by several railroads, was destroyed.

Similar reports came from every quarter of the flooded section, and tend to impress deeper the fact that the railroad was a great sufferer.

Over every river and creek it has been necessary to erect temporary bridges, and in most cases to repair embankments cut into by the water. Mile after mile of track has been laid anew. New switch and signal systems have been installed.

Freight, however, is being carried westward. In many cases the devastation was so tremendous that it was utterly impossible to clear the lines quickly, and upon reaching these sections trains are detoured. Most of the traffic is over temporary tracks and bridges, but they serve the purpose until others can be substituted, and reports from the trouble district say trains are running only thirty minutes late at the most.

While the railroad companies have been spending millions in their efforts to re-establish former systems, they also have suffered a great loss of business in the flooded sections.

The loss of business for one month on the line connecting St. Louis with Pittsburgh amounted to 50 per cent, but it is fast resuming its normal volume, except in cities whose industries have been wholly incapacitated.

SLAYER WANTS FLASHY SUIT

Last Request of Negro Murderer Is For "Loud" Clothes.

Unintown, Pa., April 22.—On the occasion of his last public appearance John Harris, a negro condemned to death for murder, will wear a flashy black and white striped suit and tan shoes.

There was a chance that Harris' appearance might be postponed for some time, but when a respite was refused it became certain that the negro would come before certain officials designated by the state on Thursday to make a final plea. He then communicated his desire for the black and white suit and the tan shoes to the warden of the prison.

ULTIMATUM TO MONTENEGRO

Unless She Withdraws From Scutari Powers Will Land Troops.

Antivari, Montenegro, April 22.—An ultimatum was sent to Montenegro by the commander of the international fleet blockading the coast.

It declares that unless Montenegro immediately withdraws her troops from Scutari the fleet will land troops at Antivari, Dulcigno and San Giovanni di Medua. An officer was landed at Cattaro and conveyed the ultimatum to Cetinje.

Constantinople, April 22.—Delegates representing Turkey and all the Balkan allies with the exception of Montenegro signed an armistice on Saturday at Bulair.

Flames Sweep 1000 Acres.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 22.—Forest fires, fanned by a gale, threatened a number of properties around Absecon. The flames spread rapidly, jumping across roads and destroyed more than 1000 acres of valuable timber. A hundred residents, assisted by members of the Pleasantville fire department, resorted to back fire methods.

Blows Off His Fingers.

Bordentown, N. J., April 22.—George Paul, residing on a farm near Bordentown, while using dynamite to blow up stumps, had all the fingers of his left hand and one on his right hand blown off.

The Scrap Book

An Operatic Engine.
An amusing episode occurred some years ago when Mr. Damrosch was giving a series of lecture recitals on the "Ring of the Nibelungen." The opera was "Das Rheingold," and Mr. Damrosch, seated at the piano, was giving in his kindly, informal, delightful fashion the various "motives" of the music. He played and explained the "Blue motive," the "Acherich motive," the motive of the "gold," the "Fafner motive."
"Then he came to Lohk, the god of fire. Half turning toward his breathless audience, he played the theme, saying in his slow, grave way, 'And this is the Lohk motive.'"
For a second there was silence; then a low ripple of laughter went over the house. But Mr. Damrosch—bless him!—was so deeply absorbed that he never saw his droll word play at all. He gave a wondering glance over the audience, probably thinking something amusing had happened there, then swept on his rousing way like a steam engine through the score.—New York Evening Sun.

Life—the Struggle.
Virtue is not in mere existence
And shunning things that make life
Life is in the right using
Of the gifts bestowed us here.
Life is not in idle dreaming
Of some distant vague ideal;
Life is labor and a strenuous
Hourly conflict with the real.
Virtue is not in watching struggles
High and dry on some safe shore,
Enter in his heated contest
There you're needed more and more.
Life is not in following footprints
Or keeping wheels in some set groove.
Make your own tracks, strike out boldly,
Life is progress—forward move!

Tim Hurst's Baseball Troubles.
At the close of that memorable season when Tim Hurst managed the Browns for Von der Ahe he laid over in Philadelphia on his way to his home up the state, and while in the Quaker City he told his daily experiences while running the Mount City club.
"My Mondays," said Timothy, "were devoted to telling the St. Louis sporting editors how I was going to win the pennant the next year. Tuesdays I would be kept busy denying to the club owners that I had ever made any such statements. Wednesdays I would be explaining to the newspapers why we weren't winning games. Thursdays I would be fighting with Charlie to keep him from firing the players and the money that had come to them. Fridays I would generally be busy all day getting the terms of pitchers that no longer could hit."
"And on Saturdays?"
"On Saturdays I would spend the day signing players that couldn't hit any kind of pitching."

person, who had a million or so in other lines of endeavor, took a part of his fortune and with it built a theater on Broadway. At the end of his second week as proprietor manager he was standing at the door one evening just before the performance began, talking to Paul West, the song writer. Along came a leading dramatic critic, and he stopped for a minute's chat with the two others.
"Say, Harry," asked the owner, "what's the reason that I ain't making no money out of this here proposition? Here I put up a nice clean house and hire a good company and yet the crowds ain't coming."
"Well," diagnosed the critic, "I'll tell you, Jake. This is a new place, and you mustn't be in too big a hurry. Remember how long it took some of these other houses to get established. You'll have to build up your own clientele."
He passed on and West went inside to see the show. When he came out at the end of the first act Jake was waiting for him and drew him aside.
"Paul," he demanded, "what was the name of that there thing Harry told me I'd have to build up here?"
"A clientele," said West.
"Sure, I thought I had it right," said the owner. "And now what I want to know is why them guys down at the building department gave me the laugh awhile ago when I asked for a permit to build one."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Cheerful Advice.
A number of railway men were once discussing the question of accidents.
"The roads in Scotland," said one official, "used to have a bad name, indeed, in respect to accidents. No one thought of embarking on a railway journey unless he had provided himself with an accident policy of insurance."
"The famous Dr. Norman Macleod was once about to set off on a long journey through the Scotch country. Just as the train was pulling out the clergyman's servant put his hand in through the window and said:
"I've re'tren an insurance ticket, sir."
"I have," replied the doctor.
"Then," continued the servant, "write your name on it and give it to me. They have an awful habit of robbin' the 'offices on this line.'"

PARISIAN SHARPERS.
A Decey Bishop Who Happened to Be Caught Off His Guard.
It should not be supposed that the get-rich-quick man is confined to this country. In fact, there are those who assert that alongside the average Parisian promoter American sharpers are in the infant class. Here is a sample of French methods in such cases which may be characterized as spectacular at least:
A concern known as the Auxiliaire Internationale was launched recently, and those who attended the organization meeting found themselves facing a dignified chairman dressed in a violet soutane. On inquiry they were told that the prelate who had consented to lend his presence and influence to this worthy ecclesiastical enterprise was the bishop of Antioch.
Everybody was enormously impressed, and there is no telling what a gold en harvest would have been reaped if not restless would-be investor had not chanced to stroll back into the meeting room after the affairs of the day were concluded. There sat the bishop of Antioch, his cassock pitched over a chair and a large black cigar in the corner of his mouth, discussing with one of his associates the best system for milking.

The police who raided the next meeting discovered that the bishop of Antioch was a maître d' hotel, who received 5 shillings an hour for playing his episcopal part. New York Post.

A YAWN AND A STRETCH.

They Help the Nerves and Muscles and Rest the Whole Body.

Did you know that a good, wide open mouthed yawn is a splendid thing for your whole body? This is the opinion of an English hygienist.
It is one of nature's most evident demands for a rest. Some people think they yawn because they are sleepy. But that is not so. They yawn because they are tired. They may be sleepy, too, but that is not the real cause of their yawning. You are sleepy because you are tired, and you yawn because you are tired.
Whenever you feel like yawning just go ahead and yawn. Don't try to suppress it unless you are out in very formal society, where your hostess would be grieved.

If you can stretch at the same time that you yawn do that, too, for it is another way of nature's stretching and relaxing the muscles. Indeed, if you are very tired and do not feel like yawning there is nothing that will rest you so quickly as to sit on a straight-backed chair and lift the feet from the floor, push them out in front of you as far as possible, stretch out the arms and put the head back.
Then open the mouth and make your self yawn. Your tense nerves will relax, the contracted muscles will stretch and the whole body will be rested.—Chicago Tribune.

No Inventions—Barbarism.
What would the world be today without invention?

The most vivid imagination could not picture the state of trade, industry and society if no ingenuity in the various fields of human endeavor had been exercised during the ages.

The world today would be stagnant in all things in which it is active and progressive if genius, enjoying full play and granted adequate rewards, had not provided thousands of aids to every phase of human activity. Scholars and philosophers talk of the dark ages, when man was but little removed from a dumb animal. Yet those ages would have been prolonged had not inventive genius in countless ways, generation after generation, added to the enlightenment of humanity and to its comfort and well being.—Judge.

A Regular Bookworm.
The story is told of a certain multi-millionaire whose early education had been somewhat neglected who, finding himself rich, built a fine mansion and asked a friend to procure for him a library of books. I particularly admire a grand religious poem about Paradise by a Mr. Milton and a set of plays quite delightful by a Mr. Shakespeare. If these gentlemen should write and publish anything more be sure and send me their new works."—Denver Republican.

POPE OUT OF DANGER, PHYSICIANS DECLARE

Regard Him Now as Safely Convalescent.

Rome, April 22.—Pope Pius continues on the road of convalescence. A brief bulletin to this effect was issued by Drs. Marchisava and Amici at the Vatican, with the announcement that the pontiff's condition was so satisfactory that there would be no further bulletins published as to his health.

The pope was in much better spirits and felt stronger. He still suffered somewhat from coughing. As the day was sunny, the pontiff was allowed to rise and sit in an armchair in front of the closed window.

For the first time since his last relapse the pope was able to look into the Piazza di S. Pietro, which was alive with people. When he saw that a large number of flags were flying he asked the reason and was informed that it was the anniversary of the foundation of Rome, 2663 years ago. "Cities grow with age while men decline," remarked the pope.

The physicians and attendants of the pope are taking the greatest precautions to prevent him from making any exertion just now, as any activity on his part is still regarded as dangerous. The pontiff, however, is eager to begin work again and often insists that Monsignor Bressan and Monsignor Pescini, his private secretaries, read him the most important of the letters which accumulated during his illness.

Guarded by a Network of Devices to Insure Their Safety.

From the moment a depositor lines up before the revolving teller's window of a bank and lays his bills on the counter until he again receives back his money from the paying teller his deposit has been surrounded by a network of devices to insure its safe keeping. It has been subjected to the rigid banking laws of the state or nation to a guardianship by a host of public officials, by steel and by time locks, by the vigilance of the bank officials and the surveillance of bonding companies.
And yet in spite of this constant effort, though the depositor rarely loses himself, sometimes his money mysteriously disappears, and until the guilty person is detected the shadow of a doubt hangs over the personnel of that bank, from the office boy to the president. Such, however, is the system of vigilance by which the public through its agents of the law guards funds on deposit that it is only rarely that the money so taken is not recovered.
The marvel is not that men daily lured, tempted with opportunities to pilfer the wealth which passes through their fingers sometimes yield to this temptation, but that the percentage of loss from theft which the banks of the country sustain is not greater than it is. Indeed, so unusual is the occurrence of a theft by a member of the bank's personnel that when such is the case the bank's nervous organization is thrown out of equilibrium. The bank as a bank never rests until the theft is uncovered and the guilty man is made to reimburse the cash taken. William Buckley in Los Angeles.

Kidneys Seldom Free from Poison

Clean Them Out and Backache, Sideache and Bladder Troubles Go.

It's mighty close to the truth to say that there are ten thousand apparently healthy people in America to-day, who will have Bright's disease, dropsy or some form of kidney disease within two months.

If you have backache, or the slightest suggestion of backache, don't take chances. Get a 50 cent bottle of Thompson's Barosma to-day and give your kidneys a thorough cleaning. They probably need it. If they don't, Thompson's Barosma is a good tonic anyway and will do you good.

Thompson's Barosma is guaranteed by People's Drug Store to cure kidney or bladder disease, no matter how distressing, or money back. Put up in liquid form, is quickly assimilated and goes directly to the seat of trouble. The very first dose will make your sick kidneys feel better, but bear this in mind when constipation is present Thompson's Dandelion and Mandrake Pills should also be used. 25c.

COATS THAT SHOULD INTEREST YOU

Owing to the fashionableness of the one piece dress, coats are in greater prominence than for several years past. The rounded corners or slight straight cut away—with spring-like trimmings and pretty new closings as well as new fabrics, puts the former season's coat out of style. Even the least expensive ones have the cut, the cloth and ideas you would hardly expect at the price. We were never so well stocked with coats for spring—Coats that are tailored to our order by the "Wooltex" organization and three or four other high grade manufacturers. A coat bought from us will not only hold its shape—but will have style and fit.

Coats at $7 to $20—Every between price and for all sizes of women.

Misses' and Children's Coats in assortment of cloths and styles.
